

HARYANA

THE HINDUSTAN TIMES 5

Implications of 'e-business' taken up at seminar

HT Correspondent
Ambala, May 1

THE 5TH national-level seminar on "E-Business: Recent Trends, Projections and its Implications for Corporate India (Vision 2010)" was held at the Shri Atma Nand Jain Institute of Technology and Management here yesterday.

Dr Hoshiar Singh, Vice-Chancellor of Kurukshetra University, inaugurated the day-long seminar, which comprised two technical sessions presided over by Prof J.D. Aggarwal, Director, Institute of Finance, New Delhi, and Prof K.L. Jai Singh, Chairman, ICWA (Northern region).

Speaking on the occasion, Dr Hoshiar Singh said that the concept of e-business was unimaginable a few years ago, but the inno-ventions in the fields of electronics and communication and their synthesis with commercial activities had brought the world closer by revolutionising their various business techniques. Prominent speakers included Mr R.C. Srinivasan, Chief Economic Advisor, RITES, New Delhi, Dr Prem Kumar, University School of Management, Talwandi Sabo, Bathinda, Mr J.B. Singh, Branch Manager, RIL, Chandigarh, and many other distinguished people.

The speakers touched various aspects of development in the fields of electronics, information technology, business and management techniques and emphasised the need for updating the technical know-how in all fields, as in the future knowledge alone would differentiate the management people from others.

The Indian EXPRESS
CHANDIGARH ■ TUESDAY ■ MAY 2, 2000

E-commerce seminar organised

AMBALA: E-Commerce is the latest buzzword. Even though it works much the same way as the traditional stores, it guarantees improved efficiency, lower costs, less human errors, reduced paper works, better customer management and improved customer relations, said Raj Kumar Jain, joint managing director, Enkay (India) Rubber Company, in his address at the fifth national seminar organised by the A.S. Jain Institute of Management and Technology here on Sunday.

Seminar on e-Business

A ONE-DAY seminar on e-Business: Recent Trends, Projections and its Implications for Corporate India (Vision 2000), will be organised by the Shri Atmanand Jain Institute of Management & Technology here on Sunday. Vice-Chancellor of Kurukshetra University Prof Hoshiar Singh will be the chief guest at a function being presided over Mr Raj Kumar Jain, joint managing director of Enkay (India) Rubber Company, Ltd., while Mr Satish Kumar, Senior Manager- IT, Rail India Technical & Economic Services Ltd. (RITES) will present the keynote address.

According to Mr Mukesh Sehgal, director of the institute, the valedictory session would have Mr O.P. Aggarwal, Chief General Manager, IFCL, as the chief guest with Prof Amar Singh, Dean of Colleges, Kurukshetra University, presiding over the session.

HTC, Ambala

THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE, APRIL 30, 2000

Sunday, April 30, 2000 2

SNIPPETS

Seminar on e-business on April 30

AMBALA: A national seminar will be held at Shri Atmanand Jain Institute of Management and Technology on April 30. A number of experts are expected to participate in the fifth national seminar on "e-business: recent trends, projections and its implications for corporate India (Vision 2010)". Institute Director, Prof Mukesh Sehgal, said the seminar would focus on understanding the meaning of e-commerce and its relevance and projections in all functional areas of management in India. — TNS

Chandigarh Newslite
TUESDAY ■ MAY 2, 2000

Home & Around 5